

The Rose That Grew From Concrete

“The Rose That Grew From Concrete” flower activity directions:

- Research and choose a flower that represents you. Think about unique aspects of the flower and why it represents your personality. Draw a picture of your flower OR choose one on google images. Below the picture, write about why you chose that flower and why it represents you.
- In the background of your flower drawing, draw pictures/symbols/words to represent struggles you face in your life. Then explain what the background represents in the space provided.

You can draw this on your own paper and attach a picture of it to the assignment OR you can use the template on slide 5 to create your assignment (using google images).

Make sure you include your answers to the 2 questions! (Write or type your answers) See my examples on the next 2 slides.

example:

The flower represents me because dandelions are pretty, but simple. They have very different forms and for me, that represents the different parts of my personality. (Sometimes I feel outgoing and fun, other times I feel like being quiet and introverted) Also, they are hard to kill and I am very stubborn and determined. They can survive anywhere and survive difficult circumstances.

The background represents the things that get in the way of me being successful. The to do list and infinity sign represent my neverending list of things to do. The zzz's represent my occasional laziness and love of sleeping and relaxing. The brain represents that I have a hard time focusing and that I tend to overthink things. The shadow monster represents anxiety and fear of failure that sometimes keeps me from trying new things.

example:

You can draw your assignment on your own paper, take a picture of it, and attach it/ submit it.

Make sure you write your answers to the 2 questions on your paper before you take a picture.

The flower represents me because dandelions are pretty but simple. They have very different forms and that represents the different parts of my personality
(sometimes I feel outgoing and fun; other times I feel like being quiet and introverted)
Also, they are hard to kill and I am very stubborn and determined. And they can survive
The background represents my home
The to do list and infinity sign represent my never ending list of things I need to do.
The Zzz's represent my laziness and love of sleeping. The head represents how my brain is all over the place and I tend to have a hard time focusing.